

VDP Summer School Call for Proposals

Deadline:
Friday 2 December

The Vienna Doctoral School of Philosophy is seeking proposals for the third edition of its summer school, to take place in 2023.

Information

Being a member of the organizing team of the VDP Summer School is an opportunity for doctoral students affiliated with the VDP to gain expertise in organizing international academic events and networking with researchers working at the University of Vienna and worldwide.

Organizers will gather international scholars at different stages of their careers working on their dissertation topics.

Ideally, the organizing committee includes at least one postdoctoral researcher affiliated with the Department of Philosophy.

The instructors/lecturers can be external or affiliated with the Department of Philosophy.

The VDP and the International Office will fund the Summer School. Organizers can include funding from third parties (e.g., research projects at the Department of Philosophy).

How to Participate

Proposals should be short (i.e., no more than two pages) and include:

- a brief description of the topic/ theme/concept
- the names of the organizing committee members
- a list of possible instructors for the summer school

The organizers decide the theme, format, and dates of the Summer School.

The VDP Steering Committee will review the proposals in December. The decision will be notified a few weeks after the deadline. Organizers can get started in earnest in the new year.

The deadline for submitting proposals is Friday, 2 December. Proposals should be sent at vd.philosophy@univie.ac.at.

Additional Information is available at the VDP Moodle.